

TYPES OF SPANISH VISAS

Non-Lucrative Visa

A Non-Lucrative Visa is a visa to reside in Spain without carrying out any gainful (work or professional) activity, provided that the applicant has sufficient and guaranteed means to live on. This visa does not constitute a work permit.

The Non-Lucrative Visa permits the stay of non-EU individuals in Spain for a maximum of one year, with the chance to extend this further.

Golden Visa

The Golden Visa program is designed to grant residency in Spain to investors who make a significant investment. It provides an opportunity to reside in Spain but does not offer a direct path to citizenship. The Spanish Golden Visa serves as a residency permit that grants full residency rights in Spain, as well as access to the Schengen Area and other European Union countries. This visa enables you, and your family to live and work in Spain,

A Golden Visa can be obtained when you buy a Spanish property of at least €500,000.

Student Visa

If your intention is to study or undergo training in Spain for a period exceeding 3 months, obtaining a student visa is necessary. There are various types of Spanish student visas available, each with different durations of validity. The application procedure entails the submission of several documents, and it is essential to be accepted into a course before initiating the visa application.

Working Visa

The key to a working visa is that somebody must sponsor you.

A Spain work visa is a type of long-term stay visa that grants permission for foreigners to enter, reside, and work in Spain with official authorisation from the government. Non-EU/EEA citizens are required to obtain a work visa in order to legally live and work in Spain. Work visas are typically handled by employers on behalf of their foreign employees, who must have a job offer or contract from a Spanish company.

Business Visa

A business visa is a temporary visa valid for a duration of 3 months, specifically intended for individuals engaged in business-related activities. This visa allows entry into the country for purposes such as conducting business negotiations, attending meetings or conferences, and similar activities. It is important to note that a business visa is distinct from a work visa, and therefore, holders of a business visa are not authorised to work during their stay in the country. You will still require travel insurance and confirmed accommodation.

Nomad Visa

The digital nomad visa gives non-EU nationals the chance to live and work in Spain for up to five years. The visa is aimed at people who live outside of the European Economic Area and are employed by a single company outside of Spain. The visa initially allows remote workers to live in the country for 12 months, with the option to apply for a residence permit, which can be renewed to stay for a total of five years if the applicant remains eligible. After five years of legally living in Spain, the applicant can apply for permanent residency.
